Used Car Week is about bringing people together, building relationships, and driving the industry forward. This year, we as a conference have taken a big step forward, broadening the scope of the Used Car Week conferences, taking the content out of its silos and allowing attendees to choose the data-driven content that is most valuable to them.

This year's new and improved format means that instead of registering for individual conferences, attendees are registering for the First Block, Second Block, or both. First Block attendees have access to content from all of the First Block conferences — the Pre-Owned Con (formerly CPO Forum), Auto Fin Con (formerly SubPrime Forum) and Repo Con (formerly Re3 Conference). Registrants for the Second Block have access to content from the National Remarketing Conference and NAAA Convention.

We know that dealers want to learn more about auto finance, that there is significant overlap between auto finance and repossession, and that everyone has an interest in the wholesale remarketing space. These are segments of the industry that are completely intertwined, so we've taken a page out of the industry's book, and we've torn down the walls between our conferences. Attendees are free to choose from a wide variety of content to select the sessions that are most relevant to their specific interests.

Attendees currently registered for Used Car Week 2017 can be viewed via the following list, which is sponsored by ALG. The conference is the perfect place to build your network, grow your business, improve your knowledge and bolster your career. Be sure to add your name to the list by registering for Used Car Week 2017.
